

Company Profile

A world pioneer in innovative wireless solutions, Wavecom was the first company to commercialize GSM technology in the form of a standard module, the WISMO, making wireless technology available to everyone. WISMO modules are compact devices that include all of the hardware, software and other technology needed to enable wireless communications over the GSM/GPRS, CDMA and future 3G networks.

WISMO modules enable any equipment or system to communicate without a fixed line connection. Applications include mobile telephones, automotive navigation and information systems, personal digital assistants with wireless communications functions, and devices enabling communication between vending machines or utility meters and control centers.
